Kipling has written a poem about "The Bear that Walks Like a Man." Now let him write one about "The Man Who Hugs Like a Bear."

A man with ten wives has been arrested for vagrancy in Chicago. Many get on with only one wife to support them, and it does seem that ten wives should find themselves able to support one husband.—Galveston News.

The Texas drummers are beginning to feel the evil effects of the tobacco trust and are beginning to squirm. By the consolidation of factories one man now carries a number of tobacco samples—when but a short time since there was a salesman for almost each separate brand. It is claimed that by thus banding together and reducing individual expenses that the consumer gets goods much cheaper. There are thousands of consumers who will seriously contest such deductions and even then ask "at what sacrifice are we permitted to enjoy these trust and monopoly given blessings?"

Rebus Cage was here yesterday representing the St. Paul fire and marine insurance company. Mr. Cage is also interested in the Lowry round cotton bale.

Editor Martin of the Centerville Democrat, was mingling with Bryan friends yesterday. Editor Martin knows Bryan is the best town in this section of the state.

You can catch a Cough very easily, and when you get a cough you may have a score of Remedies suggested in a day. EIGHT MEN ROSE A TRAIN IN MINNESOTA.

They Blow Open One of the Safes in the Express Car, but Fail on the Other One.

Fergus Falls, Nov. 11.—The Great Northern train which passed through this city at 7:30 o'clock last night was held up and robbed about five miles west of here. There were eight robbers in the gang all well armed. Two of them evidently boarded the blind baggage in this city.

The train was scarcely out of town when these two climbed over the tender and presenting revolvers, told Engineer Bruce and his fireman to stop at a lonely spot near the Pelican river bridge. Arriving at this place the train was stopped and the engineer and fireman were ordered to leave the cab. The other members of the gang rushed from the woods and boarded the express car. All had handkerchiefs over their faces. The gang was regularly organized and went by numbers. When the train stopped the conductor and brakeman started forward to find out what the trouble was, but the bandits fired a number of shots and warned them to keep back.

They then compelled the express messenger to leave the car and while three or four stood guard the others proceeded to blow open the safes. The local safe was destroyed, and it is thought that they succeeded in securing considerable money, but the exact amount cannot be learned. The through safe was drilled and dynamited, four charges being used. The jacket was blown off, but it was found impossible to reach the inner part and get at the cash. They worked over it nearly two hours, holding the train for that length of time, but gave up finally and joined their companions on the outside and started south.

The two men who stood guard over the engineer compelled him to give up $60 which he had upon his person. The express car was somewhat wrecked by the explosion, but the trainmen managed to get it to Carlisle, where it was patched up and the train proceeded on its westward journey.

Conductor Smith sent a trainman back to this city to give the alarm, but nothing yet has been heard of him. Several poses are out but no trace of the robbers has yet been reported.
